Lisa Elfring

Assistant Vice Provost

Office of Instruction & Assessment

Lisa Elfring is Assistant Vice Provost of Instruction and Assessment for the University, heading up the Office of Instruction and Assessment. This office provides training and technical support for UA instructors as they design, teach, and assess innovative courses on campus and online.

Prior to her administrative appointment, Dr. Elfring served as Associate Professor and Director of Undergraduate Studies in the Molecular and Cellular Biology department, where she focused her efforts on improving the teaching and learning of biology. She came to the University of Arizona in 1998 and has taught a wide variety of courses for over 5,000 biology majors, graduate students, teachers-in-training, and working biology teachers. Her teaching and advising have been recognized by awards from the UA College of Science and the UA Honors College. Her research focuses on developing programs that support evidence-based teaching strategies in the biology laboratory as well as the classroom, and she is active in several national biology-education-reform initiatives.

Student Speaker

Briggs Carhart

Neuroscience & Cognitive Science
Molecular & Cellular Biology
Physiology
Academic Distinction

Briggs is currently a senior majoring in Neuroscience and Cognitive Science, Molecular and Cellular Biology and Physiology with minors in Biochemistry and Ecology and Evolutionary Biology. He is completing his first Honors Thesis under Dr. Wulfila Gronenberg to understand the components of the arachnid nervous system. Meanwhile, Briggs is completing his second Honors Thesis under Dr. Daniela Zarnescu to map out connections between ALS and copper homeostasis. His goal is to attend medical school to become a neurosurgeon and to educate peers and mentors about social injustices in the medical field.
